

WHAT IT MEANS.

IT IS VITAL TO THE INTERESTS OF THE STATE.

It Means a Revolution in Business—An Impetus to Great Work—And a Great Stride for North Carolina.

(Special Cor. of STATE CHRONICLE.)
GREENSBORO, July 25th, 1890.—Do the people of North Carolina realize what this means to them?

The success of the North Carolina Steel and Iron company is assured beyond a doubt, but that is not all. What does it mean. Not that it is a speculation to get rid of a property; not that it is a scheme to make money to the promoters of the project; not that it is a plan to sell town lots and make money out of a booming town, but that it strikes at the vitals of every interest that the State possesses.

The success of the North Carolina Steel and Iron company means the development at Greensboro of one of the largest interests of the State; that it will start iron and steel making in this State and put it where Pennsylvania now is; that it will build a large manufacturing city in the center of the State; that in less than five years there will be 25,000 people there to work, feed, clothe and maintain; that it will develop more tonnage to the railroads entering there than double the whole cotton and tobacco crops of the State; that it will revolutionize the manufacture of steel in the world just as the South has done the manufacture of iron in the world; that it will make a home market for home products; and that it will let outsiders see what the State has and what can be done, notwithstanding kickers have said that it was scheme to sell out property that had no ore on it. Experts have said there was ore, and recent developments have shown that there is ore enough to supply 1000 tons a day for one hundred years, and that the property now is rated by disinterested experts to be worth more than the capital of the company.

Our home folks do not know and appreciate a good thing. They seem to want Northern capital to come in and build up the State; but do nothing towards it themselves. Now took out! Foreign capital has been here and found out what a good thing it is to be had. They have taken advantage of it and the first thing our people know there will be no more stock to be had. Strangers will take up all the good things and leave the home people to wonder why they could not see what has been hammered into them for years. Then, when the scheme is a success, the furnaces built, iron and steel being made, the town lots sold, Greensboro the largest city in the State and getting larger every year, the doubters and kickers will come in and say: "WE KILLED A BEAR."

If the people of the State want the State to prosper, let them help to make it so by taking the stock of the North Carolina Steel and Iron company, and make Greensboro a success, and then every town in the State can do likewise, or in some way benefit by the success of the greatest enterprise of the State.

THE WAR IN CENTRAL AMERICA.

(From the Danville Register.)

Many of our readers have doubtless failed to keep up with the quarrel between Guatemala and San Salvador, and are ignorant of the causes behind between these two countries. As a matter of information, we briefly review the situation to-day.

In 1869, a conference of the Central American States was held with a view to forming themselves into a confederation somewhat resembling the United States. Guatemala being the largest and most powerful of all the States was in favor of the confederation, while San Salvador, being the smallest, was opposed to it on the ground that it would lose its identity in the new government. Guatemala, its said, in the interest of the union, has interfered in the domestic affairs of Salvador and has been opposed to any ruler in that State who would not act in Guatemala's interest. Menendez, the late president of Salvador, was in sympathy with Guatemala, but General Ezeta succeeded in ousting him and proclaimed himself president of Salvador. On July 17th, Guatemala invaded Salvador to put down General Ezeta, the provisional president, but Ezeta defeated the invaders and drove them from the soil. This was the beginning of hostilities.

Guatemala's area is 46,800 square miles and its population in 1887 was 1,367,000, of which a third were of European descent and the rest aboriginal or "Indian." The army consists nominally of about 2,200 men, with an enrolled militia of 33,000.

"San Salvador is a small state in area, embracing only 7,235 square miles, but it had a population of 651,130 in 1886, including whites, mixed and aboriginal. The army numbers 2,000 men, with 12 militia.

"Honduras has an area of 46,400 square miles, with a population (in 1884) of 458,000. The active army consists of 830 men, with 31,500 militia.

Nicaragua covers 49,500 square miles, but its population in 1873 was only 275,817, among whom the percentage of Europeans or their descendants was very small. The army consists of 703 men (397 of whom serve as police), with 9,600 militia.

"Costa Rica boasts an active army of five hundred men on a war footing, can command forty thousand militia, as every able bodied male over the age of eighteen is bound to serve. The area of the republic is 32,000 square miles, the population (in 1883) 182,073."

These statistics are taken from a recent report in the New York Herald. Should the military operations be continued, it is said that Honduras will co-operate with Guatemala and Nicaragua and Costa Rica with Salvador—the two small States being pitted against the three big ones.

Mr. F. N. Strudwick's life is now despaired of. For several weeks his condition has been most precarious, and the news that eminent physicians can only hope that he may live a few days longer is most distressing to his countless admirers.
